Page & App Background

Blush White is the universal background of the brand system. Every surface the user reads against — web pages, app screens, printed documents, and slide decks — uses this colour as its canvas. It provides the warm, approachable contrast that makes all other colours appear at their best.

Web / App Background

The base layer of every screen. Blush White behind all content keeps the interface warm and readable.

Document Pages

Report backgrounds, letterheads, and presentation slide fills. Replaces cold pure white.

Card & Modal Surfaces

Layered panels, dialog boxes, and product cards sit on Blush White when the parent is also light.

Email Templates

Newsletter and transactional email backgrounds. Warm enough to feel branded, neutral enough to read easily.

Print Collateral

Business cards (reverse side), brochure body pages, and packaging inserts.

Form Fields & Inputs

Input backgrounds when the page uses a dark or Storm-coloured form container.

Objects, Shapes & Icons

Dusty Rose is the brand's expressive colour — applied to every visual element that needs to be seen, felt, or interacted with. It brings warmth and identity to icons, UI components, decorative shapes, and interactive states across all brand touchpoints.

Buttons & CTAs

Primary action buttons — all clickable brand elements use Dusty Rose as their background or label colour.

Icons & Pictograms

Every UI icon, illustration, and pictogram in the brand system renders in Dusty Rose.

Decorative Shapes

Background blobs, section dividers, corner accents, and geometric illustrations.

Charts & Data Viz

Primary data series colour in graphs, progress bars, donut rings, and infographics.

Highlights & Tags

Badges, notification dots, labels, tags, and status pills that need brand emphasis.

Hover & Focus States

Interactive hover fills, keyboard focus rings, and selected-state backgrounds.

Borders & Dividers

Accent lines under headings, coloured rule dividers, and decorative borders.

Illustrations

Characters, spot illustrations, and iconographic diagrams use Dusty Rose as the dominant fill.

Headings & Primary Text

Blue Slate is the darkest, most authoritative colour in the palette. It commands attention and anchors the hierarchy as the go-to for

The primary headline typeface is always Blue Slate. From hero headers to section titles.

Navigation Labels

Top-nav and sidebar navigation text — the labels users scan to find their way.

Logo & Wordmark Text

Brand name, tagline, and any typographic logo element.

Pull Quotes

Large-format quotes and callout text that anchors a layout section.

Table Headers

Column headers and row labels in data tables.

Footer Primary Text

Company name, address, and legal copy in brand footers.

Hero Overlay Text

Text placed directly over photography or video backgrounds.

Body Text & UI Containers

Storm is the mid-dark workhorse. It handles everyday text, supporting containers, and UI chrome — readable and structured without

Body Copy & Paragraphs

All running body text — articles, descriptions, and longform content.

Card & Panel Backgrounds

Dark-mode cards, sidebar panels, and modal containers on Blush White pages.

Form Containers

Input field borders, dropdown shells, and form section wrappers.

Secondary Navigation

Sub-nav tabs, breadcrumbs, and dropdown menu backgrounds.

Caption & Metadata Text

Timestamps, author names, tags, and supporting info below headlines.

Footer Background

The footer strip background — deep enough to feel grounded, lighter than Slate.

Tooltip & Popover Shells

Tooltip backgrounds, context menu containers, and floating UI chrome.
